Watch out for new parking restrictions downtown

Tires are now getting "chalked" in parts of the new "civic center" area of West Sacramento.

Leave your car in the wrong place without a permit, or exceed the allotted stay in the right area, and you may receive a $30 ticket. Enforcement was scheduled to begin yesterday, partly in response to new use of the local streets with students at the freshly-opened branch of the Sacramento City College on West Capitol.

"The parking controls are designed to accommodate the increase of public use downtown, from students, to shoppers, to citizens," said a city press release. "To avoid parking violations, the public is advised to check parking signs for time limits or permit restrictions."

New, two-hour parking restriction are in effect along Merkley Avenue east of Jefferson Boulevard. In the background are the Arthur F. Turner Branch Library and the yellow-clad city community center building, which is still under construction.

According to city spokesman Art Schroeder, time limits are in place in the following locations:

Along the segment of Merkley Avenue, east of Jefferson Boulevard;

Within the shared parking lot for the Arthur F. Turner Community Library (1212 Merkley Ave.);

Sacramento City College's new West Sacramento Center (1115 West Capitol Ave.);

The West Sacramento Community Center (currently under construction east of the college campus); and

The City Hall parking lot (1110 West Capitol Ave.).

There will also be new parking restrictions on West Capitol once the current "streetscape" construction work is finished later this year.

"With enrollment of 1,000 students anticipated, the West Sacramento Center of Sacramento City College joins City Hall and the Arthur F. Turner Community Library as key components of a vital Civic Center in the city's downtown," said Schroeder in a press release. "Before the end of the year, the Civic Center will accommodate the addition of a transit transfer center, plus the opening of the Community Center, including such features as a senior lounge, a lobby/café, multipurpose rooms, and art and historical galleries."

Time limits for parking in the city's downtown area have been unheard of until now.

One arrest in nightclub murder; two still at large

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

West Sacramento police last week arrested a Cameron Park man in connection with the murder of a patron of a West Sacramento nightclub last September.

At about 5 a.m. on Thursday, detectives from the West Sacramento Police Department joined a SWAT team from the El Dorado Sheriff's Department in serving warrants on the home of suspect Jesus Ventura Solis, 30, in Cameron Park. Solis was arrested at the scene.

The shooting occurred at about 2 a.m. on Sept. 13 in the parking lot of Ortega West, on the 4200-block of West Capitol Avenue. Police believe the suspects got into a vehicle after arguing with victim Jesus Cortez-Heredia, a 27-year old Sacramento man, and drove past Cortez-Heredia firing three rounds. An on-scene security guard returned fire, hitting the suspects' SUV several times. The SUV fled the scene.

Cortez-Heredia died, and another victim received minor injuries.

Police initially identified two other people as suspects: Rocios "Rosie" Ibanez, a 32-year old woman, and a male suspect named Martin Ventura.

"In the last few weeks," WSPD Lieutenant Tom Bowler told the News-Ledger, "we developed some new information that there may have been a couple more suspects involved in this. We contacted one of those people, who turned out not to be a suspect. But information from that person led us to Jesus Ventura Solis."

Investigators now believe that three suspects were in the car involved in the shooting.

Two are still at large — and may be across the border.

"It's still our belief they may be in Mexico," said Bowler.

On 'search & rescue' duty in Haiti

A West Sacramento fire captain is on a "search and rescue" team deployed to help victims of the disastrous earthquake in Haiti.

Captain Steve Binns went last Wednesday as part of the USAR (Urban Search and Rescue) Task Force CA TF-7 of Sacramento, reported the West Sacramento Fire Department.

Binns, a logistics specialist, will operate 40-foot trucks flown to Haiti by the Air Force. The team's assignment is search and rescue.

Members of the City Council on Jan. 13 congratulated the Los Rios Community College District on the upcoming opening of the West Sacramento Center of Sacramento City College. On Jan. 19, the two story, 25,000 square foot campus opened with a full schedule of courses, both weekdays and weekends.

The shoes you wear can say a lot about you

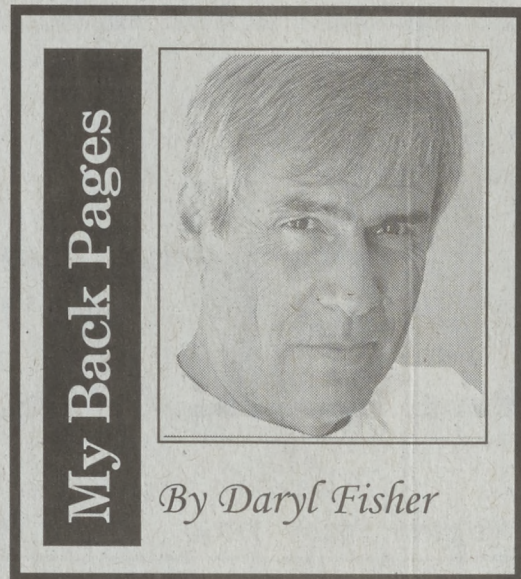

Note: Daryl is taking the week off. Below is one of his favorite columns from the past, penned more than a decade ago:

A couple of weeks ago, my 20-year old daughter and her longtime best friend (I'll call her Amy) decided to go to one of those trendy Christmas parties that most everyone attends during the holiday season. They were going to spend the night together at my house, but all they told me before they left was that the party was in Rocklin and that they had heard the place was going to be crawling with really cute guys with good jobs and lots of money.

"Feel free to marry one of them and move out on your own!" I called out to my daughter as she and Amy, both of whom were dressed to impress, hurried out my front door.

Being the concerned (nosy, actually) father I am, I waited up until way past midnight hoping to hear all the juicy details, but unfortunately, I fell asleep in the middle of an old Gary Cooper movie and had to wait until then next day to begin the debriefing.

"So," I said to both of them at breakfast, "how did the party go? And don't be leaving out all the good stuff just because you think I might have a heart attack or something."

My Back Pages

By Daryl Fisher

"Well," said my daughter, "to tell you the truth, everything went really well for about the first hour or so."

"Then what happened?" I asked with interest.

"Your daughter went and blew our cover, that's what happened," said Amy.

"Blew your cover?" I asked, a little confused.

"That's right," said Amy. "Go on, Carrie, tell your dad what you did."

"Well," mumbled my daughter apologetically, "I was talking to this one guy and he suddenly asked me where I lived, so I went ahead and told him I was from West Sacramento."

"She didn't just tell one person," quickly corrected Amy, "she told the whole group of guys who were standing there, and each and every one of them happened to be a real babe, too."

"Oh," I said compassionately, having often myself been subjected to that look of horror (actually, I think it's a mixture of pity and revulsion) in the eyes of an otherwise normal person when informed that they are talking to someone who lives in West Sacramento. "Then what happened?" I asked.

"Well," answered my daughter, "let's just say I'm not going to be getting married to a rich guy from Rocklin anytime soon."

"You know," said Amy, "I actually think those poor guys at the party got scared of us when Carrie announced that we were from West Sac."

"Yeah," said Carrie to me, "and just what is that all about, anyway, Dad? I mean, just what did you and your friends and your generation do to make everyone on the other side of the Sacramento River scared to death of anyone who lives in West Sacramento?"

"My generation?" I asked with as much indignation as I could muster up. "What's my generation got to do with it?"

"I heard you guys back then were all a bunch of hoodlums!" said Amy with emphasis.

"Hey," I said with conviction, "I was not a hoodlum! Now, it's true that I may have had some hoodlum friends, but except for a few who ended up in jail and one who went on to be a very successful hit man for the Mafia in New York City, they were all actually very nice."

"I'm serious," said my daughter, "just how did West Sacramento's big, bad reputation get started anyway? And why are so many guys from Sacramento scared to even come over the bridge and drive through here, much less date someone who lives here?"

"Well," I said, "if you girls really want to know the truth, to the best of my knowledge, it all began with the choice of one's footwear."

"Footwear?" asked my daughter with disbelief. "You mean shoes?"

"That's right," I tried to explain. "You see, when Amy's father and I were growing up in West Sacramento in the 1950s and 1960s, there were only two kinds of guys — those who wore hard shoes — 'the hards', and those who wore tennis shoes — 'the frats'."

Whenever a 'hard' ran into a 'frat', there was usually a fight, and some of the guys I grew up with were even known to pile into their cars now and then and go into Sacramento looking for trouble.

"What?" asked Amy, beginning to laugh.

"And almost all of the guys who attended Sacramento high schools back then," I continued, "wore these really ugly white tennis shoes. They also wore white gym socks and pants that looked like they were going to a flood, kinda like they belonged in a college fraternity, hence the nickname 'the frats'. On the other hand, if you were from West Sacramento, you proudly wore shiny black hard shoes, and I'm not talking just any old hard shoes, either. They had to be very, very pointed, and if your toes weren't crying out in agony when you had them on, then your shoes weren't really pointed enough. And if you were really cool, you also wore a long, black trench coat, even in the summer. Anyway, for reasons that I guess no one back then really understood, whenever a 'hard' ran into a 'frat', there was usually a fight, and some of the guys I grew up with were even known to pile into their cars now and then and go into Sacramento looking for trouble. And as you might expect, the guy wearing the hard, pointed shoes usually won."

"So," said my daughter with surprise, "then you all were a bunch of hoodlums!"

"Absolutely not," I quickly replied. "In fact, most of the so-called hoodlums I knew back then grew up to be fine, upstanding West Sacramento citizens — just like the one who married this great lady he went to James Marshall High School with who now manages a big fancy bank and has spent decades making sure her old West Sac Jack stays out of trouble."

"Hey, wait a minute," said Amy, looking over at Carrie, "my mom manages a big fancy bank."

"Is that right?" I asked.

SPORTS INSIDER ON THE COURTS

By Richard Novoa

The Sacramento Kings and the Maloofs are working closely with Sacramento Mayor Kevin Johnson's Convergence team to evaluate nine different proposals to build Sacramento the finest sports and entertainment arena money can buy. Cal Expo officials and the NBA have been negotiating for three years over a proposal to develop a sports and entertainment complex there as part of a larger plan to revitalize the state fairgrounds.

The newest development was unveiled on Thursday night at a press conference by NBA consultant and developers Gerry Kamilos and David Taylor detailing a complex plan involving the three sites with plans that would build an arena downtown at The Rail Yards through the sale of Cal Expo and the relocation of the fairgrounds to land at Arco Arena.

The Sacramento Convergence privately-financed project would converge three prime redevelopment sites in Sacramento: the downtown Rail Yards, Cal Expo and the site of Arco Arena in North Natomas in conjunction with the city's planned regional transportation center on city-controlled land at the Rail yards.

The project would consist of giving to the state of California about 188 acres in North Natomas including both the city's land by Arco Arena and the Maloofs' land that contains Arco Arena. The state would also get $2 million to plan new state fairgrounds on the Arco Arena site. The existing site of Cal Expo would be sold for cash at current market value, and would be used for new development.

The Maloofs would commit $300 million to the financing of the project, paying $10 million a year for 30 years and they would pay off to the city what's outstanding from the $68.5 million loan the city made to the franchise in 1997 and would receive a 30-year lease for the downtown arena. At the end of 30 years, the city would own the complex.

The goal would be to break ground in October 2012 or early 2013, and open in 2014. The initial phase of an arena, parking garage and the payment to Cal Expo could run around $675 million to $700 million and would create 300 immediate professional or technical jobs, 5,000 construction-related jobs during build out, and 20,000 direct and indirect permanent jobs.

Kamilos proposal is still just one of nine projects still being considered by the Sacramento First Task Force. The task force is reviewing the other seven proposals that were submitted along with the earlier Cal Expo proposal. The ninth option is renovating the existing Arco Arena but the Kamilos proposal now has the support of the NBA and partners with big money, names and experience to pull it off.

The Sacramento Convergence team estimates the project would inject more than $1 billion into the region's economy at build out, and would significantly increase property, sales and use tax revenue for the city and Sacramento County. OK, who said money was

River City's varsity boys' basketball team split a pair of games last week, taking their record to 5 wins, 11 losses. The junior varsity squad, meanwhile, defeated both West Campus (62-33) and Cosumnes Oaks (69-64). Fans had a scare in the game on Friday when a visiting Cosumnes Oaks player was injured -- prompting a call to a local emergency response team -- but the player "walked off" the injury and retired from the game.

The Raider varsity squad defeated West Campus on Tuesday, Jan. 12, by a score of 86-65, but dropped Friday's game to Cosumnes Oaks, 64-52 in the home gym.

The squad plays on Friday at Foothill High, and will host Center High in West Sacramento next Tuesday.

H1N1 shot clinics continue

From the Yolo County Health Department

The flu may be leveling off, but it isn't going away. In California, we are still seeing more people sick with the flu than we would normally see at this time of year. Laboratory testing shows that Novel H1N1 is the main flu virus making people sick around the state. The California Department of Public Health estimates that 4.3 million Californians have already been infected with Novel H1N1. As of December 22, 2009, 12 million doses of vaccine had been shipped to health care providers in California. But California's population is over 36 million people. Which means that most Californians have either not gotten sick from Novel H1N1 yet or received the vaccine, so are still at risk for getting the Novel H1N1 flu.

"This slowdown in flu activity and additional shipments of the vaccine means there is a window of opportunity to get vaccinated," stated Dr. Joseph Iser, Yolo County Health Officer and Director, in a press release. "The more people get vaccinated, the less likely the disease

Kings Korner

Ever since I mentioned the Kings were playoff material the boys in purple have lost 11 of their last 13 games. I guess I can take the blame but it's more like the young Run & Gun Kings just can't put their efforts together to present a whole game package. They either play a great first half or even better second halves but never both with the end result being another loss.

Kevin Martin returned to the line-up and it's caused mass confusion with player trying to figure out their role on the court. Martin's legs are dead and he can't keep pace with the Run & Gun Kings and his shooting eye is a little dead averaging about 9 points in his three losing appearances on the road.

The NBA's trade deadline is Feb. 18th and with the addition of another center in Hilton Armstrong, whose contract is also expiring, I smell another big trade in the Kings future. Francisco Garcia will be back in Purple very soon and the bench is already crowded so it only seems like GM Geoff Petrie is planning another move for the Kings future.

Stay tuned because teams are inquiring about Martin so don't be surprised to see him packaged with Thomas and is large expiring contract.

This week the Kings continue their long road trip taking them to Atlanta on Wednesday (4 p.m.-CSNCA) with a day off before back-to-back games starting on Friday in Orlando (4 p.m.-CSNC) and Miami on Saturday (4:30 p.m.-CSNCA). The Kings will return to the friendly confines of the Arco on January 26th against the Warriors.

NFL Playoffs

In the AFC, the Colts and Peyton Manning are just one more win from Miami and Super Bowl XLIV after taming Ray Lewis and his wild Ravens 20-3 while the New York Jets stunned the San Diego Chargers 17-14 to set up the Conference Championship game on Sunday, January 24th (noon-ch.13) from the Lucas Oil Dome Stadium in Indianapolis.

It will be the Jets' first AFC championship appearance in 11 years while Manning has won the big game leading his Colts to a 27-17 win over Chicago in the 2007 Super Bowl. The Jets on the other hand haven't been to the big dance since 1969 when they won the Super Bowl after Broadway Joe predicted the Jets win over the heavily favored Baltimore Colts.

The NFC Championship game is set for the same day at (3:40 p.m.-ch.40) in New Orleans featuring the old man Brett Favre and the Vikings against the New Orleans Saints. The Vikings manhandled the Cowboys 34-3 with Favre enjoying one of his finest days behind center. The game was close at 17-3 going into the final quarter when Favre escaped a fierce pass rush to fire a long touchdown pass to Sidney Rice to extend his NFL record streak of throwing at least one TD in 19 consecutive postseason games.

The Saints, on the other hand just flat out whipped the Arizona Cardinals 45-14, and are now one game from the Super Bowl and the NFL Championship. The Saints have only the Vikings and Favre standing in their way of a Super Bowl and collecting the Forty-Fourth Vince Lombardi Trophy.

Of course, the Saints have never marched into a Super Bowl game while the Vikings, who have played in four Super Bowls, but have never, won the NFL Championship. The Vikings, who played in four Super Bowls dating back to 1970 to 1977, have not reappeared at the big dance in 32 years.

Aztecs Pick's

My dog Aztec had a tough playoff week going 1-3 to drop his season total to 46-42-1 but at least Aztec is assured finishing over the .500 mark with only three picks remaining in the NFL season. In the AFC, the Colts will ground the Jets (+7) and stampede their way to the Super Bowl XLIV against the New Orleans Saints, who will march into their first Super Bowl appearance in franchise history but they have one huge road block to reach their Super Bowl dreams and it's named Brett Favre.

The Vikings old man is on a roll and playing great and brings to NFC Championship big game experience and also he has the support of a pretty good defense, plus the Vikings (+4) are getting points so don't bet the house on this week's Championship games - it's cold and raining outside this week so stay warm and enjoy the games on Sunday.

Enjoy your day - see ya next week!

just one of ways Rotary supports education. Another is the annual speech competition.

The West Sacramento Rotary, members of Rotary District 5180, will be hosting its Annual Speech Contest at the club meeting on February 5th at the Pheasant Club. Six students from River City High School will prepare speeches from 5-8 minutes in length and present them to the club. The theme for the speeches is "The Future is in Your Hands". The Club will be providing a 1st place award of $200, 2nd place award of $100 and 3rd place award of $50. The 1st place winner will advance to the Area Semi Final Level and compete with winners from other area Rotary Clubs. The Semi Final Competition takes place Wednesday March 10th at 6pm at the West Sacramento City Hall. Prizes at this level are a 1st place award of $250, 2nd place award of $100 and 3rd place award of $50. The winner of the Semi Final contest will advance to the District Level Final Contest April 7th and compete for the top prize of $1000. In 2005, West Sacramento student Lauren Mejorado won the District 5180 Speech Contest and collected the top award with her speech on the theme of "Having Fun While Helping Others."

That was also the theme of a recent trip longtime West Sacramento Rotarian Mark Engstrom made to Honduras. Engstrom had a connection in Honduras, a former employee who had taken a year to go to the impoverished region and assist a school for special needs children (and had presented his vision to several area Rotary clubs prior to leaving to receive some financial commitments). Mark, along with his wife and two of his three children, donated money (along with his brother Jim Engstrom) as well as provided hands on assistance in replacing the dilapidated roof. The children rewarded the volunteers' hard work with a skit they performed and which was broadcast on their local TV station. While there, Mark also reached out to the local Rotary club of Juticalpa to learn about their needs and challenges.

They toured a recent water project installed by the club and made plans for a collaboration next year to install a much needed water storage system in another nearby school. Engstrom said the experience reminded them how truly fortunate we are and how important it is to help the less fortunate whether close at home or across the globe.

In that same vein, Rotary is utilizing its resources to assist the international relief effort in earthquake-ravaged Haiti. Rotary International has posted relief efforts on its site and providing means to donate directly to the Rotary Club Foundation DAF Haiti Earthquake Relief #296. Another organization Rotary is partnering with is ShelterBox, which has mobilized to deliver 500 containers of supplies and water to affected areas. Area Rotarians are also involved, including Petion-ville Rotary Club member Claude Surena (in the area of Port-au-Prince), who is personally sheltering more than 100 people in his damaged home, while leading the efforts to distribute the ShelterBox containers to the areas most in need.
